The Serengeti Rules by Nicolas Brown

WINNER OF THE 2018 GREEN FIRE AWARD
AND AUDIENCE CHOICE AWARD

2018 FESTIVAL HIGHLIGHTS

WELCOMED 22 filmmakers and special guests, including four student filmmakers, to share their films, perspectives, and expertise with audience members.

PRESENTED the seventh annual Conservation Filmmaker Workshop, a two-day documentary filmmaking workshop, to 19 emerging filmmakers with 11 instructors from Smithsonian Channel, HHMI Tangled Bank Studios, National Geographic, National Park Service, and independent production companies.

SELECTED and screened 36 of the most compelling, diverse, and informative films from around the world to present over two weekends of the Festival. Film topics included scientists and conservation heroes, wildlife preservation, design innovation, water quality, climate change, sustainable agriculture, and more. Nearly 1,000 people attended.

OFFERED five short, nature-focused Virtual Reality films presented by Samsung, free to the public, during all six days of the Festival.

PRESENTED entertaining learning opportunities for children with the Backyard Wilderness film, pop-up exhibit, nature walk, and Bioblitz event, in partnership with the Potomac Valley Audubon Society.

MISSION

The mission of the American Conservation Film Festival is to foster a diverse community of filmmakers, scientists, students, and citizens to engage in conservation issues through film and education to inspire positive action.

"The staff does a great job of providing a positive atmosphere for filmmakers of all experience levels to discuss important topics and network with one another. I highly recommend that any young and aspiring filmmaker with interest in telling stories about the environment take the opportunity to submit their work to this festival and participate in the workshop." — 2018 STUDENT FILM AWARD WINNER AND WORKSHOP PARTICIPANT

We are proud to share these accomplishments and thank you for your support.

GRANTED free admission to all students 18 or younger and Shepherd University students, staff, and faculty at all film blocks.

INVITED community groups and individuals to share information on composting, voter registration, an Eagle Scout chimney swift tower project, the Rockwool factory proposed for Jefferson County, WV, and solar energy.

AWARDED cash prizes to our eight award winning films: Green Fire Award (for overall excellence); Student Filmmaker Award (with a $500 cash prize from Friends of NCTC); Foreign Film Award; Short Film Award; Green Spark awards highlighting a conservation hero, pathways to sustainability, and inspiring the next generation; and the Audience Choice Award.

AWARDED four emerging filmmakers $4,000 in cash gifts, thanks to The Allemall Foundation, to support new film projects proposed during the Conservation Filmmaker Workshop's Pitch Panel session.

PROVIDED financial support toward the travel, lodging, and filmmaker workshop tuition of aspiring filmmakers from Washington, DC, Florida, and New York through the Alex Kemnitzer Emerging Filmmaker Fund.

WE ARE VERY GRATEFUL for the generous support of so many sponsors, grantors, volunteers, community partners, and individual donors who make what we do possible. Special thanks to the following and all of those who support us!

“Professionalism and presentation match that of any NYC film festival I’ve seen in over 10 years.” — AUDIENCE MEMBER

“Thank you for such positive, uplifting films that are inspiring and hopeful. Always, we are called to action by your brilliant film choices!” — AUDIENCE MEMBER

THROUGHOUT THE YEAR

PRESENTED the 2017 Foreign Film Award winner, Giraffes: Africa's Gentle Giants, and the 2017 Student Film Award winner, Keeping the Potomac, as well as discussion with the filmmaker and river keepers from the Potomac Riverkeeper Network at our 6th annual Best of Fest at the Weinberg Center for the Arts in Frederick, Maryland. 235 people attended.

HELD a spring fundraiser in Shepherdstown, WV, featuring three films from the 2018 International Big Cats Festival (in partnership with the Jackson Hole Wildlife Film Festival), discussion with a wildlife biologist and a National Geographic video producer, and an Indian-inspired evening of food, drink, and music. Over 100 people attended.

PRESENTED a special screening of Wasted! The Story of Food Waste, followed by discussion with a butcher and executive chef who focus on local food sourcing at our 3rd annual Best of Fest at Barns of Rose Hill in Berryville, Virginia. Over 100 people attended.

PROVIDED a year-long internship to a Shepherd University student who has cataloged and digitized over 300 films from the ACFF Archives.

PRESENTED a screening of Water & Power: A California Heist as part of the Contemporary American Theater Festival's Friday Films series during the theater festival in July.

AWARDED five students with cash prizes for their video submissions to our ongoing Next Gen Capture Conservation Contest, designed to engage and encourage students 18 and under to create and submit short videos about their relationship to nature and the environment.

PARTNERED with the Environmental Film Festival of the Nation's Capital to co-present films at our respective film festivals – In the Hills and Hollows at DCEFF in March and Wasted! The Story of Food Waste at ACFF in October.

PARTICIPATED in the Shepherdstown 4th of July parade with ACFF staff and volunteers.

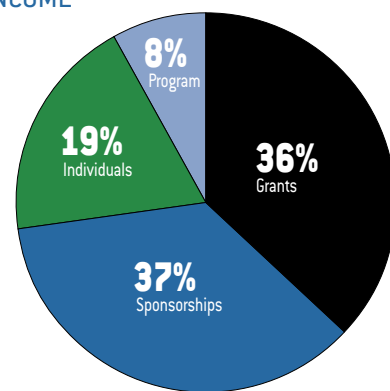

PARTNERED with the Shepherdstown Film Society for a special free screening of In the Hills and Hollows and a preview of 2018 festival films.

PRESENTED a special screening of the 2018 Green Fire Award winner, The Serengeti Rules, to students of the Smithsonian-Mason School of Conservation at the Smithsonian Conservation Biology Institute.

PRESENTED a screening of Seed: The Untold Story in Washington, VA, in partnership with the Rappahannock Association for Arts and Community as part of their Film-Talkback Series and the annual Farm Tour weekend.

2018 FINANCIAL SNAPSHOT

INCOME

EXPENSES

"The funding we got from ACFF's Conservation Promise Award essentially enabled us to make it through the first stages of production. As our very first bit of funding, it really gave us the initial boost of confidence and money necessary to get started."

— STUDENT FILMMAKER AND
2017 PITCH PANEL CONTEST WINNER

GOING FORWARD, WITH YOUR SUPPORT...

As ACFF anticipates its 17th year and beyond, we remain committed to presenting the most compelling, contemporary films about conservation issues, developing programs and events that engage people of diverse ages and backgrounds, and supporting filmmakers and film projects that make a profound and positive difference.

With the support of individuals, businesses, foundations, and community partners, we can:

BE A DESTINATION for filmmakers, audience members, and students interested in conservation issues, education, and storytelling.

RECRUIT partners in the environmental, science, and media fields to help teach, promote, and execute educational programs for students and aspiring filmmakers.

STRENGTHEN local and regional communities through education, partnerships, tourism, and special events.

PROVIDE access to select ACFF films to schools, community groups, and organizations and greater exposure for filmmakers and the critical issues they explore through their films.

PROVIDE resources that facilitate further understanding and exploration, opportunities to convert inspiration into action, and connections to the causes and organizations that will help people make a positive difference.

"This year's films were very pivotal and life-changing for me." — AUDIENCE MEMBER

"It really was an honor. I just got a note ... from Mary Power, the woman scientist in the film who experiments in rivers. She said: "The Green Fire Award is particularly meaningful—two of Aldo's (Leopold) sons, Starker and Luna, taught at Berkeley—Luna was a colleague with my husband Bill on the geology faculty here."
